

IUPHAR Education Section
TEACHING EXCELLENCE AWARD 2018

The IUPHAR Education Section (IUPHAR-Ed) invites nominations for the Teaching Excellence Award to be announced at the Pre-conference Satellite of WCP2018 (June 30 – July 1) at Kyoto, Japan.

The Award

IUPHAR-Ed will be awarding Teaching Excellence Awards in 2018 to recognize outstanding pharmacology educators who have made a sustained and significant contribution to education and/or training in pharmacology in any context.

To be considered for this award, individuals must be nominated by 2 colleagues (one of whom should be from outside the nominee's institution).

Target Group

IUPHAR-Ed will select individuals who have made sustained and significant contributions to the teaching and learning of pharmacology. Such contributions may include:

- sustained excellence in teaching that promotes student engagement and effective learning
- innovative teaching methods and/or assessment strategies
- development of resources that facilitate the teaching and learning of pharmacology
- contributions to the scholarship of teaching and learning
- fostering interdisciplinary, inter-university or international teaching collaborations
- leadership in the enhancement of teaching and learning in the discipline of pharmacology

Nomination Process

Nominations for this Award must be submitted to Professor Simon Maxwell (Chair, IUPHAR-Ed) at the address below before 22 June 2018. "Teaching Excellence Award" should be included in the message subject and full contact details of the nominator and nominee must be included in the message body.

The nomination should include a one to two page statement outlining the reasons why the nominee should receive the award, highlighting their contribution to pharmacology education and/or training. The nomination should include the following information in a single pdf document:

- the name of the nominee
- the names of the two nominating individuals
- a brief CV for the nominee that includes career highlights, outstanding achievements in pharmacology education and relevant references to their best work (providing evidence of innovation, teaching scholarship and leadership)

It is expected that this nomination document will be no longer than 2 to 3 pages in total.
